"Those in touch with fundamental brown all along that conditions have known all along that there was never any real danger of food shortage so far as the United food shortage so far as the United States is concerned, unless because of a calamitous and unusually unfavorable season." the report continues. "The real need was for a far greater than average production, not for ourselves, but for our allies across the water. "Fortunately, however, it is an ill wind which blows nobody good; so this unfounded apprehension had at least the effect of stimulating production, especially in garden truck; and, moreover, there was presented to the farmers an unusual incentive in the form of enlightened self-interest, which bore fruit in equally unusual industry, because of abnormally prevailing high prices of all food products. The consequent answer of American agriculture, for our needs as well as those abroad, is the promise of an abundant harvest of food products beyond previous records, as a whole, in our experience." vous records, as a whole, in our ex-

Constitutionality of Soldier Ban.

Constitutionality of the law forbidding the sale of liquor to soldiers in uniform will be attacked in Police Court Tucsday by Attorney Robert I. Miller in the cases of John J. Madden, Arthur Winston and John Carpenter, three of the several persons who were in court Wednesday for alleged violetions of the law. It is the intention of counsel to charge that the law is discriminatory in that it mentions only certain classes of persons in uniform.

Judre Puch will hear arguments on demurrers Tuesday. James B. Archer and Ralph Civen, on behalf of the government, will argue that the law is constitutional and necessary. Should the court decide against Attorney Miller's contentions it is probable that the question will have to be decided by the Court of Appeals.

The Planogravure Section An unusually attractive array

An unusually attractive array of photographs will be found. Almost the entire section is devoted to pictures of events in the great war, including a number showing our American troops on French soil. Another of particular interest shows the wedding of an English noblewoman and an English officer. An especially interesting picture is the one of a ship painted in checkered design in marine blue and gray; when the sun casts its rays on the vessel it seems to fade out of sight, and the onlooker sees naught but a shimmering haze.
